BULLY FOR WAT.

He Stands by His Convictions Like a Man

—Dick Tyler's Bad Break.

Louisville, Aug. 24.—The conference of leading Democrats called for to-day, met here to-day at the State headquarters at 1:30 o'clock behind closed doors.

Gen. Hardin and all of the other candidates on the Democratic ticket were present at the conference. Gen. Hardin made a speech full of vigor. He did not recede one iota from the position he had taken on the financial question. He contended he was standing on the platform and was not in conflict with his party. Hardin said he would submit to a caucus of the party but he would not yield to dictation. He asserted his ability to construe the platform, and said he abided by its utterances, which have been published, and has nothing to retract or modify.

When he closed there was warm applause from the free silver men present. All of the candidates, with the exception of Mr. Tyler, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, agreed to stand by Mr. Hardin in his construction of the platform. Mr. Tyler announced his purpose of continuing to speak for sound money, no matter what the utterances of the head of the ticket might be on the currency question.

A committee of five, consisting of three silver men and two gold men, was appointed to draft an address to the Democratic voters of the State. The voters will be called upon to support Gen. Hardin, as well as the remainder of the ticket. The address will also urge Democrats to drop the currency issue.

It was after 6 o'clock when the meeting adjourned.

The Tabernacle Incident.

There has been so much criticism of the three members of the directory who refused to let the speaking be held in the tabernacle Friday that Mr. W. W. Ware, the president, furnishes the following statement:

"It was decided simply because it was forbidden in the charter, which the association that furnished the money and built the house formulated and unanimously adopted, and gave the directors as a guide in the management of the house. It says political assemblies of every kind always excluded. Then we were urged to amend the charter so as to allow political meetings, banquets, etc., to be held in the house. It is not our province to do so and can only be done by a two-thirds vote of all the members of the association. We can only see the charter faithfully carried out."

Killing in Caldwell County.

(Princeton Banner.)

F. J. Hauberry, of Hopson, was shot and badly wounded Thursday morning by a tenant named Herbert Sanders. One shot passed through the leg above the knee, shattering the bone, another through the arm, making a flesh wound while a third missed its mark.

As soon as he had fired the third shot, Sanders saddled his mare and left the county, going toward Trigg county. He has lived in Trigg, Lyon and Christian counties and it is supposed that he is now among his friends somewhere in that region.

Good Prices Prevailed.

The tobacco market last week was active, but sales were not so heavy as they had been for the past two weeks. No fine goods were offered, the bulk of the business being made up of common leaf, lugs and trash. Prices obtained were most satisfactory. Receipts were fairly good, but nearly all the '94 crop is now in and this line of the business may be expected to gradually decrease until the new crop begins to come in. Nothing to report in the loose market.

Found Dead in Bed.

TRENTON, Aug. 26.—News has just reached here that H. L. Webb, a prominent farmer living a mile from town, was found dead in bed this morning. He had been unwell for several weeks. Deceased leaves a fine estate and belonged to one of the best families of the county.

The next session of the Hopkinsville High School will begin Monday, Sept. 2. Maj. Ferrell considers his prospects very flattering for a fine opening.

A New Marshal.

BLOODY MURDER.

A Negro Brutally Assassinated a White Man at Gracey.

W. V. Adams, section boss on the L. & N. railroad, Gracey division, with headquarters near Gracey, was stabbed and killed about 6 o'clock Saturday morning by a negro named Jim Kline, who had previously been a section hand under him.

Kline assaulted Adams and at once jerked out a knife and began to cut and stab the unarmed Adams, who was not expecting trouble, at a furious rate. Adams' little son, a boy about 12 years old, was present and saw his father murdered. Kline after giving him several vicious stabs in the breast made a swipe at his throat and severed his jugular vein. The blood spouted out on Kline's coat and hat and as Adams fell the murderer took to his heels.

Adams lived long enough to tell the name of his assailant. He was discovered lying by the tool house by the section hands who also saw the negro running away. The victim's hands were torn, showing that he had repeatedly grabbed the knife blade, only to have it pulled out of his hands by the murderer bent on taking his life.

The chief of police was notified by telephone and Chief Fritz and officers Henry Layne and George Walker took the case, showing that he had repeatedly grabbed the knife blade, only to have it pulled out of his hands by the murderer bent on taking his life. The officers got out of the vehicle and gave chase and after firing several rounds at him he stopped, being too exhausted to run longer. None of the shots hit him. The negro's hat was bloody. He said he got the blood on it "toting beef." He had thrown away his bloody coat. He was taken to Gracey where he was identified by the little Adams boy and the men who saw him leaving the tool house. He made several attempts to break away and had to be tied and closely watched. He reached town about two o'clock and was lodged in jail.

Kline is a small, heavy built, brown negro about 35 years old. He was a quarrelsome, trifling fellow and Adams had incurred his enmity by turning him off. It seems to have been a cold-blooded murder, with revenge as the motive.

Adams was a quiet, steady man, popular with the road and well liked generally. He was about 40 years old, and leaves a widow and one child. He had been in the employ of the L. & N. several years.

THE INQUEST HELD.

The Coroner's inquest developed the following additional facts:

W. D. Brown, M. D., of Julien, testified that death resulted from severing the jugular vein.

E. C. Cravens stated that Adams told him while dying that Jim Kline cut him.

W. S. Adams testified that he saw a man that resembled Jim Kline throw two rocks at Mr. Adams and then saw them run together and clinch and fall.

Dick Adams, son of W. V. Adams, testified that he saw his father go to the tool house and set the bucket down and then Jim Kline jumped out, seized the door and knocked him down. He then drew the knife and stuck it in his neck. Then he got up and ran.

A Collier testified that when he came to the door he saw Adams strangling in the ditch and saw Jim Kline leaving the scene and could swear that it was the same man.

Tucker Lewis testified that he saw the man leaving and that he resembled Kline.

Charley Boslin testified that he saw the man leaving and that his form resembled Kline's.

Mrs. Adams, the wife of Mr. Adams, testified that her husband told her it was Jim Kline who cut him.

The verdict was as follows:

We the jury summoned by the coroner to look into the cause of the death of W. V. Adams, who died Aug. 24, 1895, at J. F. Cravens' switch, after hearing all the available evidence, find that he came to his death by a knife thrust, the same severing the jugular vein, the knife being in the hands of Jas. Kline:

JAS. ALLENWORTH, JR.

L. G. CRAVENS.

J. F. CLARK.

J. R. HOPPER.

WM. WALKER.

HENRY BROOKS.

All of the witnesses were put under bond to appear before the grand jury.

If we are ever to have any more hangings in Christian county, we have a fine subject in this brutal murder. The evidence shows that he hid in the tool house and assassinated his victim in cold blood. There was not even a quarrel. It was a murder, foul and unprovoked, and Kline's neck should pay the penalty.

A protracted meeting is in progress at Longview Methodist church. Rev. D. L. Collier is assisted by Rev. M. L. Blanton, of Nashville. Services at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m.

HARDIN AND BRADLEY

THE DEMOCRATIC LEADER TOO MUCH FOR BILL.

Pinned to the Wall on "Negro Equality" Bradley Squirms Like an Eel—Hardin Fairly Skinned Him

When Gen Hardin and Col. Bradley reached the city Thursday night the committee on arrangements learned for the first time that both candidates objected to speaking in the open air. Everything was in readiness for the speaking at the fair grounds. A change was of course necessary and a meeting of the tabernacle directors was called that night and they were offered $100 for the use of the only room in town, large enough. Six of the seven directors were present. Messrs. Gunn, Tibbs and Steele were in favor of amending the charter which prohibits its political meetings, but Messrs. Ware, Foulks and De Treville opposed it and the directors stood tied. Mr. Pyle was the absent member, who was out of town. The tabernacle being refused the only vacant warehouse in the city, that of Wheeler, Mills & Co. across the railroad, was hastily fitted up with a stand and seats and it was filled by 1 o'clock. This was found to be like an oven, as the weather was very hot and the house was poorly ventilated. It was impossible to stand the int. heat and the meeting adjourned to the court house. There was a wild rush, as there was not room in the court house for more than one-fourth of the crowd. The court room, jury rooms, hall way and gallery was soon packed and Gen. Hardin began his speech at 2:20. He was introduced by Mr. Geo. E. Gary, chairman of the county committee.

Gen. Hardin was given an enthusiastic reception and began his speech with a reference to the condition of his voice.

He first discussed national affairs in about the same way as in his published speech. After discussing the convention that nominated him, his

THE HOLMES SENSATION.

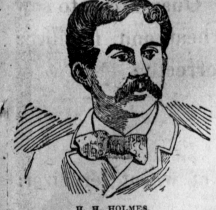

Career of the Notorious and Unique Criminal Epitomized.

The Police Department of Chicago Claim to Have Secured Satisfactory Evidence to Show That He Killed at Least Ten Persons.

Special Chicago Letter.

If the reports of Chicago, Toronto and Philadelphia's police officers are even partially based on fact, the United States has the unenviable distinction of having produced, in the person of H. H. Holmes, the shrewdest and most unprincipled sounder and criminal of the nineteenth century. A mere summary of the crimes charged against him would fill many columns; and the story of the murders said to have been committed by him, told in the barest outline, has caused intense excitement wherever it has been heard.

H. H. Holmes, whose real name is Herman W. Mudgett, was born in Gilman, N. H., in 1850, at the age of

H. H. HOLMES.

17 he married Clara A. Lovering, a New Hampshire girl. In 1870, while clerking in a store at Concord, N. H., he began the study of medicine, and a year later, entered the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania at Ann Arbor, Mich. After his arrival in the Michigan city he incurred his life heavily, and with the assistance of a fellow student succeeded in procuring a body in the dissecting room as his own. The conspirator collected the insurance and separated, Holmes returning to the east where he continued his studies. In 1887 he left his wife, telling her he was going to Chicago, and from that time until November, 1894, she knew nothing about his doings.

Some time in 1887 Holmes arrived in Chicago and became clerk in a drug store at No. 700 Sixty-third street. In 1888 he bought the store, as well as the property at the corner of Sixty-third and Wallace streets, on which he erected the building which was since become known as the "castle" or "chamber house." In the same year he married Miss Myrtle Belknap, of Wilmette, a suburb of Chicago.

In the month of September, 1889, L. Conner was employed by Holmes to take charge of the jewelry branch of his business, and Mr. and Mrs. Conner and their daughter Pearl were persuaded to occupy apartments in the mysterious office. In 1891 Conner bought the store of Holmes, but soon afterward had trouble with the latter over his wife. In March the couple separated, and Mrs. Conner was made bookkeeper by Holmes, who assumed management of the store. On the evening of December 24, 1891, Mrs. Julia Conner and little Pearl disappeared and have not since been seen alive. Shortly afterward, in May, 1892, Miss Emmeline Cigrand, a handsome young lady from Indiana, assumed a position as stenographer in the castle. In December she informed her friends that she was to be married to a Mr. Phelps, whom she represented as a rich man. Then she dropped out of sight completely, not even calling for her wedding outfit, which remained in the hands of the dressmaker.

About this time Holmes, who had assumed the name of Harry Gordon, ANNIE WILLIAMS.

MARRIED VICTIMS OF HOLMES.

visited Denver, and there met Minnie R. Williams, an elevatorist, at the Fifth street branch. Early in 1893 Miss Williams came to Chicago and was installed as Holmes' private secretary. She was possessed of property at Fort Worth, Tex., valued at $50,000, part of which Holmes afterwards secured, either through forged checks or undue influence. Soon after her arrival at Chicago, Minnie came to her sister Nannie to make her a visit. Nannie left her home hurriedly with instructions that if she did not return at a certain time her trunk should be sent after her. Her trunk was shipped to Chicago, but was never taken out of the express office. Holmes is said to have stated that Nannie became attached to him, who aroused Minnie's jealousy and led her to kill her sister. Nannie Williams disappeared in July, 1893. One night soon after Nannie's murder the castle, which had been insured for $60,000, was burned out. The insurance company, suspecting and refusing to pay the loss, and for three months tried to get hold of Holmes, who dodged about from point to point in Chicago until December 15, 1894, when he left for New York. Holmes was the brother with Minnie Williams and Benjamin F. Pitzel. Minnie was leftward victim. Indianapolis police secured the body of a woman from jail of Pitzel, his alleged accomplice. At the same time he had the Minnie Williams property in Fort Worth transferred to him under the name of Benton T. Lyman. He then went to Franklin, Ind., and there married Miss Georgiana York on January 12, 1894. Holmes is reported to have appeared in Fort Worth, under the name of O. C. Pratt. After beginning the erection of a building on the Williams lot, Holmes and Pitzel left for St. Louis and planned the insurance swindle which led to his arrest.

In July, 1894, a life insurance policy for $10,000 was issued by a Philadelphia company in favor of Benjamin F. Pitzel. The scheme evolved by Holmes to secure this sum was as follows: Holmes and Pitzel were to get possession of a corpse resembling Pitzel, burn it to prevent investigation, and then prove Pitzel's death, and share the money. As a means to this end, Holmes was only appointed guardian for the Pitzel children, Alice, Howard and Nellie. In September, 1894, the charred remains of a man were found in a deserted house at No. 1316 Calverhill street, Philadelphia. Holmes and Pitzel went to Philadelphia and identified the remains as those of Benjamin Pitzel. The insurance money was paid to J. B. Howe, a Louisville lawyer. It is stated that Lawyer Howe received $2,500. Mrs. Pitzel $500, and Holmes the balance of the $10,000. Alice did not return to St. Louis with Holmes who said that he had left her in good hands. On the pretext that he wished to put them in a good school, Holmes took Nellie and Howard from their mother. He took Alice and Nellie to Cincinnati, Detroit and other places, and finally to New York, where he was arrested at Vincent street, it is claimed, he killed the girls and buried them in the cellar. The boy, Howard, it is stated, was murdered at Indianapolis. On July 19, 1895, Detective Frank Geary, of Philadelphia, discovered the bodies of the two girls in the cellar of the Toronto cottage. They were promptly identified by their mother.

On November 17, 1894, Holmes was indicted in Boston charged with conspiracy to defraud the Philadelphia insurance company. The work of the detectives caused a belief that the body found in the Calverhill street house was really that of Pitzel and that he had been killed by Holmes.

The discovery of the bodies of the Pitzel children in the Toronto cellar led to a thorough examination of the Holmes "castle" at Chicago. The police department concluded to search the premises from cellar to attic, and the discovery followed each other in quick succession. On July 23 blood-stained garments were found in the cellar, on July 24 a part of a child's skeleton, supposed to be that of Pearl Conner, were unearthed; on July 27 one M. G. Chappell, a somewhat dispirited mechanic, said to the police that he had articulated four skeletons for Holmes, two of which he produced a few days later. On July 29 detectives discovered a secret exit in the basement of the castle. This exit was buried five feet under ground and is twelve feet in length. It was probably used for quickening the bodies. A path large enough to hold two persons and supplied with gaspipes is another startling feature of the castle. The police theory is that Holmes persuaded his girl victims to enter the vault, which is absolutely sound-proof. He would then close the door, turn on the gas and asphyxiate them. After they were dead he would place the bodies in a chemical solution so as to prevent identification, and finally have the skeletons articulated.

Since Holmes has been found guilty of the murder of Alice Pitzel by a coroner's jury in Toronto, he is reported to have made several statements explaining how he came in possession of the skeletons articulated for him by Chappell. He said he procured the dead bodies for the sole purpose of selling them to physicians, a business which, he claims, never fails to return a good profit. Police officers at Chicago and Philadelphia-Holmes is now in jail at the latter place—ridicule his explanation.

Should evidence continue to accumulate, the state's attorney soon hopes to be in a position to prove that Holmes murdered in cold blood Mrs. Julia Conner and her eight-year-old daughter, Emma Cigrand; Minnie and Nannie Williams; Benjamin F. Pitzel and his three children, Howard, Alice and Nellie. To be added Miss Emmeline Cigrand; Nellie, who was employed in a candy store at Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, where a man, supposed to be Holmes, made her acquaintance. After he had visited her a few times, she, too, disappeared, and has been seen no more. Other victims are spoken of, but they are not mentioned as being proven. It is a singular fact that all of Holmes' alleged victims were young and pretty women. It is supposed that he was a person of more than ordinary intelligence.

THE HERMIT CRAB.

His idea is to get a House to fit, but he has not yet found one. The hermit crab has no shell except upon the front portion of its body and upon its claws. When unprotected it is liable to be attacked and devoured by fish, and even by its own kind; and so the very first thing it does in life after it is able to get about at all is to find a shell to live in. An exceedingly small shell, says the New York Sun, will do for it at first; it may be a tiny snail shell not more than a quarter of an inch in length. The crab moves from time to time, as it grows bigger, into larger and larger shells, until at full growth it may require a shell four or five inches in diameter. The hermit is such only so far as its habit of hiding its body in a shell goes, and that is a habit arising from necessity; otherwise it is a very active, restless, roaming little creature, not hidden away in a cave, but going about with its house on its back. Often the hermit seems to select a shell on account of its prettiness; some times it takes a shell that is too big for it. There is a hermit crab now at the New York aquarium that moved awfully from a native shell into a periwinkle shell that was obviously too big; the crab could hardly stagger with it, and it more and more irritates the natives. But soon it moved once more, back into the periwinkle again, and it has been there ever since, not yet grown up to it, but apparently placed with its big house. There is another hermit crab at the aquarium that is housed in a periwinkle shell, a small white periwinkle that is dusted with patches of blue, bright, velvety green, some sort of delicate marine growth—a lovely little shell. This shell fits its owner, who gets about with it gayly and small as it is, it is conspicuous among the rest on account of its beauty.

THE OLD HOUSE AND THE NEW ONE.

There is left in the hermit's tank at the aquarium a number of spare shells for the convenience and comfort of crabs that may desire to change their quarters, and these may serve also to accommodate strangers. There were brought to the aquarium the other day, for instance, from Gravesend bay, along with a lot of killers, hermit crabs. This was a worn and broken natives' shell; the shell had a hole through its top, and half its lip was gone; a pretty dilapidated sort of a house for a hermit crab to live in. It would seem as though it might have found in the sea a better shell than that, but it had no time to look for one, and it was in good condition, too. But within an hour after it was placed in the tank it had left the old shell and had taken up its abode in a new one. The new shell is a native, like the one it left, and a little smaller. It is cleaner and brighter, but clearly this change was made for the sake of utility rather than of appearance, for the benefits to be derived from the new shell's tight roof and projecting hood.

The hermits are not very much given to fighting, but occasionally they do fight. Two hermits that met in this tank the other day face to face, grappled and struggled with each other at a great rate. They were pretty evenly matched in size, but one was stronger than the other, and the stronger one shook the weaker until the shell on its back rattled against the glass side of the tank like one of those electrical contrivances that are sometimes attached to window panes.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce JUDGE THOS. J. MORROW.
 as a candidate for Circuit Judge of the Third Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic Convention July 6.

Stand by your home man.

Vote for Morrow next Saturday.

The publication of Tom Molloy's letter has caused a broad smile all over the district.

The polls will be open from 8 a. m. till 6 p. m. Vote and see that your neighbors vote for Morrow.

Let Democrats in Christian county resist the attacks on Judge Morrow by going to the polls and rolling up 2000 majority for him.

Linn has no claim on Christian county and the campaign lies his organs have circulated on Morrow and his friends should be rebuked at the polls.

And so the story that Judge Morrow was not qualified for judge, circulated in Lyon, was based on a remark the master commissioner of one county made to the master commissioner of another county.

Hon. Geo. H. Alexander, the candidate for railroad commissioner in the Louisville district, stated to the Democratic conference Saturday that he had changed his views on the financial plank of the platform since hearing Hardin's speech and now agreed with him on all points.

Judge Linn has been sending out a double-barreled circular, one barrel for Calloway county only and the other for the rest of the district. The Calloway appeal for votes is on the idea that Calloway has a superior claim to the office and is intended to create prejudice against the other counties. This circular has been followed up by a hand bill scattered broad cast over Calloway county, that reads as follows:

Don't fail to go and vote for Calloway's candidate
 for circuit judge,
 August 31.

If Linn is "Calloways Candidate," the voters of Christian county should let him get his votes in Calloway.

Dick Tyler's foolish utterances at the conference last week will weaken the ticket in the very section where he was expected to strengthen it. He represents a strong silver district, one that will give a dozen votes to Blackburn, and that never would have presented him to the state convention if his people had known that he would forsake them so soon and become a misguided exponent of the views they have never lost an opportunity to vote against. If Mr. Tyler will wind up on the duties of lieutenant governor, he will find that it will not devolve upon him to settle the financial question, and if he is a sensible man and wants to be elected he ought to remember that "Silence is golden" and govern his tongue accordingly.

The meeting of the state central committee at Louisville Saturday amounting to nothing further than the appointment of a committee to prepare an address to the Democrats of the state. There was no talk of reprimanding Wat Hardin for his construction of the platform, though there was any amount of speechmaking. Nearly all of the candidates were present, including Gen.
 Hardin himself, and they all counceled harmony and all except Tyler endorsed Hardin's plan of campaign.
 Most of them stated that they differed with him, but accorded him the privilege of making his campaign as he thought proper. None of the other candidates, with one exception, will discuss the currency question in their speeches.

Don't Tobacco Sit or Smoke Your Life away.
 It is the truth, stand clear of a book about No-To-Bac, the harmless, guaranteed tobacco habit cure that has been used by thousands eliminates the nicotine poison, makes weak men gain strength, vigor and health. No pain is sold by R. O. Hardwick under a guarantee to cure or refund. Book free.

 Address: Sterling Bldg., 700 N. York or Chicago.

Constructing the Platform.

There ought not to be any trouble about interpreting the Democratic platform. It is not an extreme document, nor is it difficult to understand.
 The State convention voted down a single gold standard resolution, as it voted down a free silver amendment.
 The platform of 1892 was adopted as common ground upon which all Democrats had stood for three years, and could still stand. Hardin, however, of all men to be a staunch bimetalist —a Stalwart Democrat, if we may use the term—who loved one metal as much as the other, and favored the free coinage of both, was put upon the platform. It was not expected by anybody that he would be called upon to let the gold monometallists of Louisville write his speech for him.
 It was understood that a happy medium had been struck. Both sides could harmonize. The bimetalists could vote for Hardin, and the monometallists could vote for the Calloway endorsement in the platform and the ticket, like the old negro's bar trap, would "ketch 'em a-comin and agwine." The bimetalists felt that they got nothing but Hardin, and although they are expected to give the votes to elect the whole ticket, they went cheerfully to work for success and, Stalwarts as they are, they will stand by the nominees, without inquiring what views they may hold on the currency question, which has no more to do with the State election in Kentucky than has the revolution in Cuba.

Who then has kicked up all this racket? Outside of Louisville where is there any Democrat who is threatening to bolt the ticket? Why should any man dissatisfied with Hardin suddenly conclude sixty days after his nomination that he could not support the nominee of the convention? If Hardin was not bound by any compact that he has broken. He was nominated with full knowledge of his views, expressed all over Kentucky in a thousand speeches during the last twenty years. It is reported from Paducah that Henry Burnett, a delegate in the convention and who is therefore under a pledge to support the nominee and whose county if we mistake not voted to make Hardin's nomination unanimous, has authorized a statement that he will not vote for Hardin. It is from the gold side only that the trouble is heard. Although the man who would become governor in the event of Hardin's death or resignation, is not a silver man.

The Louisville papers could harmonize things in ten days, if they would quit slobbering over Carlisle and go to work for the ticket. They have only to state by the platform and let the voters construe it to suit themselves. We are all pretty familiar with it by this time; most of us know it by heart, as we used to say at school. We carried Kentucky on it in 1892, and we can do the same this year if we go to work for victory.
 Whether Hardin construes the platform right or not, he construes it just as he did in the Cleveland campaign, and just as it was construed by every Democratic speaker in Kentucky. No man would have dared three years ago to say to a Kentucky audience of Democrats that the platform was in favor of a single gold standard. No newspaper in Kentucky, in or out of the party, set up such a claim. Then why should Democrats fall out at this late day over a plank in a platform that has become seasoned from age and constant use. Even so good a book as the Bible is construed to suit the beliefs of a hundred religious denominations, then why should we have any trouble to construe the platform alike. If all Christians, differing widely in their views, can fight the devil with the same Scriptures, surely all Democrats can fight the Republican party, which is just about the same thing, with the same bible of wood. Let the silver men batter the enemy with one side, the gold men with the other, and if the Populists will help us punch him with the end, or stick splinters in him, let's give them a chance and thank them for their services.

Let Gen. Hardin go ahead with his campaign. Let him fight the common enemy in his own way. He is an old hand at the business and knows how to lead us to victory.
 Let's all close up ranks and get into line. If silver men can vote for half a dozen goldbugs, the gold men can vote for two or three bimetalists, who have no more to do with settling the money question than they have with naming the Cleveland nominees.
 After we elect Hardin and save Kentucky from the threatened calamity of being turned over to a set of men depending for election on negro votes, we can take up national questions and settle them.

In the meantime, what is the Courtier Journal waiting for?

Bethel Female College.

The forty-second annual session of Bethel Female College, which will begin next Monday, Sept. 2nd. The prospects for a large attendance are very encouraging; a large number of rooms for boarders have already been engaged, and applications are coming in daily from others. Hopkinsville has good reason to be proud of the success of this institution, the history of which is interwoven with the lives of many of the most prominent women of our city and State. Among its graduates are many who are to-day exercising a noble influence on home and society, as well as reflecting credit on their "Alma Mater." There has never been a time in the history of the school when it was so well equipped for its work as now. In regard to the efficiency of its faculty, and the provision made for the comfort of its pupils, it is better than ever.
 The present management, Prof. and Mrs. T. S. McCall, nothing need be said to the people of Christian county. The teachers who have been associated with them, have also made a good reputation for themselves.
 Miss Follansbee will continue in charge of the music department, and will be assisted by Miss Shepard.
 Miss Yancey will have charge of the Art work. Prof. Steinhauser will give instruction as heretofore in Violin and Guitar, and in French and German. It may be proper to say a few words also concerning the names that now appear for the first time in the faculty.

Miss Jarman, of Nashville, Tenn., is the daughter of Prof. G. W. Jarman, LL. D., and has been for the past seven years presiding teacher at Blue Mountain College, Miss., from which she brings the most flattering testimonials. The following from the manager of the Monticello Assembly will show the high esteem in which she is held:

"I beg leave to say that Miss Jarman is a teacher of extraordinary ability and of unusual culture. Being a daughter of one of the greatest teachers Tennessee ever produced, and being trained by such a distinguished teacher as Z. C. Graves, and having full the experience in the work, she is wonderfully equipped. I happen to know that they are devoted to her in Blue Mountain and are doing everything to retain her."

A. P. BOURLAND,
 Nashville, Tenn.
 Miss Maupin, formerly presiding teacher of Georgetown Female Seminary, and recently of Lynnland Female College, is a member of one of the most excellent families of this State, a lady of the highest culture, and a teacher of simple experience. She will add both strength and dignity to the faculty. She is recommended in the strongest terms by Prof. J. B. Fung of Russellville, Ky., and many others with whom she has been associated in teaching. Miss Maupin is a sister-in-law of Geo. P.
 A. Leslie.

Miss Slaughter, of Winchester, Tenn., has achieved great success as a teacher, and has won the hearts of all wherever she has taught. She has been for the past year presiding teacher at the Central Baptist College, Conway, Ark., where she was strongly urged to remain. Miss Slaughter brings the highest recommendations from Dr. Z. C. Graves, under whom she graduated, as well as from all the school presidents for whom she has taught during the past five or six years.

FORBES & BRO.

remarks on the currency question were about as follows:

"My life had been an open book to the people of Kentucky. They knew that I believed the act of 1873, demonetizing silver, was an act of treason against the American people, facing our banker where he could be bullied, and our people where they could be impoverished at the will of the foreign holders of our bonds; that I believed and always would believe that ultimate relief could only come by restoring silver to the exact place it occupied before 1873, and by reversing all Republican policy."

"The 800 self-respecting, independent-thinking men that composed the Democratic convention had opinions of their own and dared to express them, and well they knew that I had mine and always expressed them boldly and would not retract one of them to win a crown. They adopted the national platform of 1892, and with no conditions, save the faith they had in my political integrity and loyalty to my party; they named me as their candidate for governor. It has been the unbroken rule of my life, when a Democratic convention has named the man to carry the platform, to have no further quarrel with my brother as to either, and I have not broken it in this instance. Shame upon the man who has said that I or any other Democrat in that convention will not stand upon that platform; stand on it untrammelled, as we see it in the light of Democratic truth, tradition and concurrent history, and the greatest good to seventy millions of freemen. It declares for the coinage of both gold and silver as standard money of the country, without discrimination against either metal. The only further condition imposed is that the dollar of each be kept on a parity. This is all. Is there a Democrat in Kentucky that would have it otherwise? Is there one that would not go even further and say that it should always be done consistently with the preservation of the public credit? I know of none that would repudiate by inflation, and I trust there are none who would strangle the life out of it by contraction. Is there one who did not stand on it in 1892?"

"If differences arise it will not be on the platform, but on the methods of its enforcement."

"Yes, I stand on the platform; stand on it with both feet, and of a true Democracy and a common country call on Buckner and Blackburn, Brown and McCreary, Rhea and Atherton, Ellis and Weissinger and the Democratic Press of the state to stand on it with me with guns shot for the common enemy."

"What is this boastful, blatant party, and who are the party that in their platform prate of Kentucky Democrats lacking the courage of their convictions and of Janus-faced platform? Do they think that the standard banks and so-called sound money men cannot tell the difference between the innocent and trustful charms of virtue and decency kisses from the false lips of the painted harlot. Who knows what the leaders of the National Republican party will think? Have they ever allowed to make any alliance that would retain in power?"

He then branched out into the discussion of state issues and proved that he was thoroughly able to answer all charges made by his opponent. He was armed with documentary evidence and made short work of the charges. He proved to the satisfaction of his Democratic hearers, at least, that Kentucky has not been badly misgoverned, and is not so far behind the times. By comparison he showed that to state could show a better record for honest and economical government than Kentucky. He said Col. Bradley's indictment of the Democracy was made up of the same old trumped up charges and exploded falsehoods that had done duty in all previous campaigns and which had been disproven and discredited time and again. He declared that Col. Bradley could make no specific charges against any Democratic official, and said that if he (Hardin) could not substantiate every statement he made and every figure he quoted he would leave the track and give Col. Bradley a clear field. Col. Bradley, he said, was asking to get in power in order to "look at the books." The Republicans of New York had made no such plea. They succeeded in making the people believe their pretensions of reform were sincere and carried the state. As

Gen. Hardin was saying these things he was smiling and admitting negroes on terms of social equality at all hotels, restaurants, theatres, public conveyances and all other places. "Col. Bradley," said Gen. Hardin, "says the Kentucky negroes don't want anything of the sort—but don't you know they want it; don't you know they are dying for it?" Gen. Hardin here paid a beautiful tribute to Kentucky womanhood and asked if the white voters of Kentucky wanted their wives and daughters placed on a level with an inferior race. Col. Bradley had said he was personally opposed to anything of the sort, but he wanted Col. Bradley to tell the people plainly whether or not he would sign a civil rights bill in case such a bill should be passed by a Republican legislature.

He told him to state in plain terms whether or not he was in favor of having them in the same hotels, the same parlors and the same coaches with white people. This reference to the separate coach brought forth yells of "Yes!" "He'll tell yer," and similar expressions from the colored contingent. Continuing Gen. Hardin said: "Make him speak out. I want to know what he believes in. But he will not do it." This point in the discussion was the most exciting of the day. When Gen. Hardin said with dramatic effect "Fellow citizens, I swear to you that I would die in my tracks before I would sign a bill to undo the work of God," at least three-fourths of the crowd rose to their feet and gave cheer after cheer. After the applause had died away somebody shouted "three cheers for Hardin" and again the court house shook with the storm of cheers that nearly every white man in the room seemed to join in.

Gen. Hardin closed his speech in a ringing peroration in which he appeared at his very best as a popular orator.

Col. Bradley was introduced by Mr. Otto Anderson. He spoke for an hour and thirty minutes.

He entered into a general discussion of the silver question, making the usual goldbug argument. He soon sailed into state affairs. He charged the present figures were cooked up by Auditor Norman for campaign uses, but were refuted by the auditor's report of 1893 and 1894. He then went into an arraignment of the Democratic administration at Frankfort, such as he has done in former years campaign speeches.

"As to the Tate defalcation," he said, "I charge the defalcation was the result of Democratic negligence." Much of his speech was taken up with a tiresome array of statistics about state affairs from 1897 to the present time in a vain attempt to fasten on the Democratic party a charge of extravagance, or mismanagement, which fell flat following as it did Gen. Hardin's discussion of the same old charges exploded years ago.

In answer to Hardin's question he declared himself a gold monometalist, abandoning his position taken at Louisville that he favored international bimetalism.

In answer to Hardin's question about negro equality, he said if such a law as the New York law was proposed in Kentucky, it would make a race war, and the colored man didn't want and was opposed to it. He further said he would not sign such a bill. He dodged a direct answer as to whether or not he would favor the repeal of the separate coach law, but gave the darkeys a lot of soft soap that left them under the impression that Bradley was for anything they might want. He closed with a demand for a look at the books.

Hardin, in his fifteen-minute speech arraigned Bradley severely for his false statements, misrepresentations and his refusal to answer direct questions. He fairly skinned the Republican Boss and left the Democrats in high feather. Gen. Hardin will get the full party vote in this election. The silver men, with enthusiastic and the gold men will vote for him in spite of his views on a subject that in no way concerns state affairs. They have months ago how he stood and did not expect him to take any other position.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement tends to personal enjoyment which rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on the package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.
